Sophie Forbat is a leading curator and project manager in Sydney. In her role as Artistic Program Manager at Kaldor Arts Projects, over the past nine years Sophie has undertaken fourteen ambitious art projects in sites across Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane. Working with some of the most celebrated international contemporary artists on world-premiere artworks and major re-presentations of large-scale international exhibitions and programs.

Sophie's strategic planning, curatorial and program development, marketing and fundraising strategies have supported the growth of Kaldor Public Art Projects in recent years. These strategies have achieved the consolidation of the Kaldor brand and development of a new team, have greatly expanded the scale of projects and programs, increased audiences by 419%, greatly grown and diversified fundraising revenue, increased enews subscriptions by 1,000 percent and created strong social media profiles and campaigns. Recent projects such as 13 Rooms, 2013, and Marina Abramovic: In Residence, 2015, have been highlights of the Australian cultural calendar.

Sophie has also worked with some of the world's most esteemed curators and artists on three Sydney Biennales (2004/2006/2008), Rene Block's Belgrade Biennale (2006) and the Inaugural Liverpool Biennial, UK (1999). She has also managed international collaborations with the Monnaie Museum in Paris and Art Basel/ Fondation Beyeler in Switzerland on representations of Kaldor projects.

Since 2016, Sophie has worked for Melbourne's celebrated MPavilion event, most recently designed by Rem Koolhaas and OMA, to support fundraising strategies and development for the event and its four-month program. She has also worked over the past two years with Futurecity, London, on cultural strategies and concepts for the Australian Technology Park in Sydney, the Sydney Opera House Renewal and QIC Castle Towers Shopping Complex. Sophie is a strategic thinker bringing fresh ideas and approaches to the development and implementation of Futurecity's strategies and offers considerable experience in the delivery of complex strategies, projects and cultural collaborations.
